This Week

A Message from Helen: I am sure that Christmas is already seeming like a distant memory and the New Year has not started out as positively as we might have hoped. Your understanding and co-operation have been so appreciated this week when everything has been constantly changing and there was no clear way forward. It does seem now that things will remain the same until at least February half term. Whilst all of us would prefer to be living, learning and working in more usual times, it will be good to be having so many of our pupils still accessing school, all be it for less time each week. Our curriculum will continue to run and teachers will support our pupils and families when they are learning at home and for those that we are not seeing, they will be making weekly contact.

Working together we will get through this.

Helen.
